This login method entered into force on June 1, 2017. For example, John Doe will now log on as a john.doe@stu.bmcc.cuny.edu. This has been implemented to simplify the login process for various IT services provided by BMCC. The City University of New York (CUNY) experienced a board failure today (5/19/20) from 8:18 a.m. to 10:49 a.m. CIS notified both the Board and the CUNY community as soon as the outage occurred and once again when access was restored. The array has attributed the failure to a database failure in their data center and is working with the CIS to determine a specific root cause. The CIS will continue to closely monitor the availability of the the main cause after it has been confirmed. The array is not hosted in BMCC or CUNY, but rather by its own Blackboard data center in a hosted environment. We thank CUNY for maintaining the BMCC IT campus and academic office in a loop because they worked with the Whiteboard to solve the problems. The time of this failure during our final exam week was clearly destructive, especially for our students. Therefore, the Office of Academic Affairs recommends that universities be able to accommodate students who have been affected by a failure when collecting exams or submitting work. To this end, the BMCC will work on: Allow students to re-pass exams at a different time or to extend the time to submit final tasks when they report problems accessing the board due to this failure. Extend the allotment deadlines if the failure could lead to the loss of the student's job. Include students for whom postponed exam time can be challenging due to work, personal or family responsibilities and/or internet access or assistive technologies and/or technologies or support needs. As regards students with disabilities, when recalculating exams, it is important to bear in mind the potential need to extend the exam time as a reasonable improvement of the university's approved services for people with disabilities. Students and faculty with the push of a board question can now call the Board for help. This after-hours support board will be available by phone: on weekdays - between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m. next mornings - all day and night on Saturdays and Sundays1. Be sure to have the following information ready before calling: Your CUNY Login username (username only) Your email address (not your personal email address) Your phone number College course name Course number / IDDescription of the help board you are looking for 2. Dial the following phone number: 1-646-664-2024.If you call this number between 8:00 a.m. and 8:00 p.m. on weekdays, you'll hear a message telling you to contact support. Disconnect the connection and contact support or the board administrator. Click here for a direct link to the Student Resource Center on the whiteboard. You need to log in with your CUNY login information, for example: Sam.Student55@login.cuny.eduAll students log on to the board in the same way - using their CUNY user ID. Your instructor will notify you if you use the Whiteboard during the course. You can also see if the course appears on the home page of the board. Watch this video to learn how to access it. If the image is worth 1000 words, then what is the video worth? Watch the short video below to learn how to access and navigate most courses. Remember that each course is different, so take some time to explore the course. Louis was a full-time student at bmcc, however this semester he decided to go part-time and take only two courses online. BMCC's online offer provides a variety of options for students like him and decided to use them. Louis understands that it is extremely important to contact his professor, so he wants to have at least one virtual meeting with his professor. He sets sets the desktop with microphone and camera. Need more information? Click this link to Page.Alona's Information Board is a stay-at-home mom who really likes to be able to take a course online here and there. After all, he hopes to complete his studies in liberated arts and move to a four-year institution. She has paper is due on Saturday at 5pm. However, Alona knows it's best to upload paper at least a few hours in advance to make sure everything runs smoothly. If something goes wrong with the upload, you may contact the professor and ask her to clear the attempt. Karim is a full-time student at Brooklyn College, but he's not a matriculated student here at BMCC. He has a test to be held at midnight on one of his courses. Instead of waiting until the last hour, Karim sits on a laptop with a strong internet connection a few hours before the test to complete the test from start to finish. Javier is a full-time student at BMCC. He likes to take several online courses each year because he likes the convenience of working from home and doesn't have to commute from Washington Heights. Today, he needs to respond to a forum post and then respond to other students' posts. Javier quickly searches netiquette guidelines and saves his answers in Microsoft Word to double-check tone and spelling. Aryana commutes to work every morning. While she is on the train, she reads course documents using the Whiteboard app. Online courses are hosted and delivered through the board, and many courses personally use it as well. Access the array by logging in via CUNYfirst. Each course is organized slightly differently depending on the instructor and modality (fully online, online, hybrid or in person). Log in to the board Your board login information will be the same as your CUNYfirst username, then @login.cuny.edu and your CUNYfirst password.
